I was the other person. That ole bug hit me and knocked ye ole editor flat on his back, thinking he would have to get better to die! Not being a person that gets sick often, I guess maybe I overreacted, but boy I didn't feel good at all. Actually, I went home and let these other folks get the paper out without me, but not before I spread the bug to most of them also . . . I felt a little like Typhoid Mary. Anyway, I am better and, except for being weak and lazy, everything is OK.

The folks in Bayou La Batre,down near Mobile, are mostly fishermen or from the family of fishermen. Now they have gotten quite upset when the religious group made famous (and rich) selling flowers announced plans to build a shipbuilding facility on 700 acres of land right in the small town. Their latest "blow for liberty" was to pass a law zoning the land strictly for residential. They also are trying to get part of the land declared part of the national "wetlands" preserve. There are two sides to this story and up here we can look at both. One of our basic freedoms is religious freedom and therefore we should live and let live. Secondly, many families have been upset and many stories told of the way recruits are taken into the religion, enough to cause any parent to be upset when Moonies come around their children.

The big investigation in Washington over the Korean bribe payoffs is running into trouble. They have yet to find someone to play the "goat" without telling on the others. Recently, it was announced that a secretary in the office of Representative Lester Wolf had lied about removing a certain name from a card file. She seems to be the bad guy right now . . . and right enough . . . she got caught! Forget that she didn't get any of the bribe money, just remember she has no political power except her boss and he must first protect himself before he even considers helping her!

I have watched as our neighbors at Napier Field battle with their mayor. Reports are that the council, city employees nor anyone else can get along with him. Now they have called on the Attorney General to settle their problems. I have watched their problems progress because it was so much like something closer to home. However, don't expect a man planning to run for governor next year to jump in and do things these people will not or have not done for themselves.

Senator Miller has come back with a "vote of the people" idea in the issue of the Coffee County courthouse location. While he says this is not a turn-around from his previous refusal to consider a vote, I will play like it is just that. I have not had my brain clicking enough to even form an opinion on the latest proposal, nor have I heard enough comments from the public to know public reaction. The only reaction I have seen has been from my friend Roy Shoffner at The Enterprise Ledger. Roy is jumping up and down with ideas to change Miller's proposal. Relax, Roy, some of us may still go to Heaven, but most of us will die and go to

SPEAKING OUT

Dear Sir: Although I am addressing this directly to you, I certainly have no intent of making you a part of what I have to say, merely to have you print it. After the last city election I was determined I would be "good loser" and refrain from making any derogatory remarks concerning the election nor toward our elected Mayor. I have heard, read, and even seen things happening in Elba that has convinced me that Mayor Folsom is completely inadequate from every standpoint to continue serving in that position. I further believe that if our city is to progress instead of becoming more stagnant, Mayor Folsom should known as crockpots -- are very popular these days. I've had many questions from homemakers all around the county, asking whether these convenient cookers are a good way to save energy. Slow cookers use more peratures for a shorter cooking time requires 12 to 22 percent less energy. Since cooking at the lower setting for a longer period increases energy use, you should consider whether the extra cost of the convenience is worth it when using your crockpot.

DRIED FRUITS The holiday baking spree is getting underway all over the county and many homemakers are buying dried fruits. With many of us being "once-a-year" bakers, the prices on these fruits can come as a shock. But if you stop to consider the amount of fresh fruit needed to produce one pound of dried, the price doesn't seem so high. For example, it takes 7 to 10 lbs. of porting and storing the fruit. If you plan to do much holiday baking, it might pay to shop around. Be sure to compare costs of different sized packages, too. If you find mixed dried fruit, check the ratio of prunes to the other fruits in the package. Prunes are less expensive than peaches, pears and apricots. A package that is mostly prunes might not be
